

GreenPlan Cloud Update

We're pleased to announce the release of GreenPlan Cloud with an update related to improving the overview of production and providing a clearer visualization of the data in the planning graphic. It will be released on Marts 09, 2026.

New feature

- Overview page

A new overview page has been added where you now for example, can see:

- How far has the production progressed
- The current status of production, or the status of the production on a selected date
- How much time remains of the production in the current production phase

You can find the new overview page next to the planning under the plan tab.

- Updated graphics

The graphics have been updated and provide now a better visual overview, because you can split the graph per culture and see how much each individual culture contributes. This can be done by selecting the button: Show per culture.

We're constantly working to enhance performance, security, and user experience. This update is part of our ongoing effort to improve our software.
